

Assistant Coach

Chrissy Stetton

Chrissy Stetton was born in Denver, Colorado. She started swimming competitively when she was 8 years old, and has been teaching and coaching since she was 19. As a student at Colorado State University, she obtained a Bachelors of Science in Psychology and minored in Commercial Recreation and Tourism. Her education and personal experience developed her ability to teach, coach, and empathize with students faced with the challenge of learning a new skill. In 1996, she merged her background in psychology with her competitive swimming experience and started Jackson Hole Swimming. Her innovative teaching technique embraced a positive, progressive learning approach that makes learning how to swim simple and fast for individuals of all ages. She is excited to work with the coaching staff to help our developing swimmers prepare for the competitive group.
